DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1, 2, 4-6, and 29-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Capote et al., hereinafter Capote (US Patent Application Publication 2005/0218517), newly cited.

Regarding claims 1 and 29, Capote discloses in figure 18, an integrated circuit structure comprising:

a carrier 20;

a device 10 connected to the carrier;

solder connectors 14 electrically connecting said device to said carrier;

a compressible film 42, or alternatively 34, surrounding sides of said solder connectors, wherein the compressible film has sufficient compressibility to accommodate expansion of said solder connectors when they are melted without damaging the insulating material; and an insulating material 38/40 filling gaps between the carrier and the device (see paragraph 147 of page 12). Note that materials 42/34 could be said to be rubbers, since rubber is defined as materials that have elastic properties similar to that of natural rubber.

Art Unit: 2891

Regarding claims 2 and 30-31, the compressible film 34 is stable above the melting point of said solder connectors. See the above-mentioned portion of the reference, wherein it is stated that 34 has the ability to be stable when the solders are reflowed.

Regarding claims 4, 7, 32, and 35, the compressible film forms a rectangular pattern between the carrier and the device (fig. 19).

Regarding claims 5 and 33, the pattern has channels between the device and the carrier, wherein the channels are filled with the insulating material, as can be seen in the figure.

Regarding claims 6 and 34, see figures 16 and 17, in which diagonal stripes of the compressible film is shown.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 8, 9, and 11-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Capote in view of Applicant's Admitted Prior Art (AAPA), newly cited.

Regarding claim 8, Capote discloses the limitations in the claim, as discussed above, except for disclosing that the solder joints are lead free.

AAPA discloses in paragraph 6 of the instant application, that lead free solders are known in the art and are environment friendly. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use lead free solders in the structure of Capote in order to protect the environment from harmful lead contamination.

Regarding claims 9, and 11-14, the limitations in those claims are addressed above (see above).

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to the previously rejected claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
